Sir:

This is in response to a Decision dated December 1, 2006. In the Decision, it was stated that items (1), (3) and (4) were satisfied, but item (2) of 37 CFR 1.47 (a) was not satisfied – factual proof that the non-signing inventor was provided with the copies of the application papers and explanation of the e-mail correspondence where the inventor refuses to execute the application. Applicants submit herewith a copy of a letter dated September 21, 2005 which indicates that application papers including: specification, claims, abstract and drawings were mailed to Denny Wernham together with Declaration and Assignment forms.

Also, Applicants submit a copy of e-mail correspondence between inventor Denny Wernham and contracts manager Ian D. Morgan of Thales Optics Limited. In the attached e-mail copy dated September 28, 2005, inventor Denny Wernham acknowledges receipt of the above documents. Further, in October 6, 2005 e-mail Denny Wernham stated that he refuses to sign the required documents. Accordingly, an item (2) has now been satisfied because the inventor acknowledged receipt of the application papers and refused to sign same.

Ian,

The reply is at the moment no. Furthermore, I have no intention of signing my rights to it (or indeed representing you in court over the same due to past history of doing this in the past and being compensated with absolutely nothing but pain and misery). In addition, I believe that you have potentially gained millions of pounds in sales already from this patented item with no compensation to any of the patentees.

The contractual situation is messy but appears that I have no obligations whatsoever to sign over this patent. My legal advise certainly suggests this. Please transmit this to David - he is (or has been) aware of my position. Maybe he can persuade the company (now that you are owned by venture capitalists) to invest in its employees.

without prejudice

Denny Wernham

Denny,

Apologies for you appearing to harass you on this, but have you signed and returned the documents I sent to you yet? David Fleming is in and out of the office at the moment (he's not in for most of next week) and has asked me to progress this.

Thanks

Ian

Dear Ian,

hope things are well over in sunny St. Asaph. Could you confirm that it is yourself who I should correspond with regarding the above (which I received yesterday). There is some history to this. I can explain position once you confirm.

Thanks

Denny
